

About the Book and Editor

Humans have been on the move for millennia. They have done so slowly as well as quickly, sometimes involuntarily sometimes transported by force, often relocated at great cost in lives, but they have always moved. Over the centuries, improved transportation has eased the movement, even in the face of man-made or natural obstacles. But in modern times, migration has accelerated and its reach has become truly global.

Whether it is Turkish gastarbeiter in Germany, Japanese Nisei in Seattle, Filipinos in Kuwait, or Haitians in Brooklyn, the costs and benefits of human mobility on such a wide and rapid scale are hotly debated. Global History and Migrations, the second volume of the Global History Series, explores the historical background of this issue by focusing on recent history, a time when human movements have been at their most dynamic. This book provides a rich, cross-cultural foundation for a more enlightened understanding of migration and its role in the unfolding shape of global history.

Wang Gungwu is the vice chancellor of the University of Hong Kong.

Back cover

GLOBAL HISTORY

Bruce Mazlish, Carol Gluck, and Raymond Grew

Series Editors

Humans have been on the move for millennia. They have done so slowly as well as quickly, sometimes involuntarily, sometimes transported by force, often relocated at great cost in lives, but they have always moved. Over the centuries, improved transportation has eased the movement, even in the face of manmade or natural obstacles. But in modern times, migration has accelerated and its reach has become truly global.

Whether it is Turkish gastarbeiter in Germany, Japanese Nisei in Seattle, Filipinos in Kuwait, or Haitians in Brooklyn, the costs and benefits of human mobility on such a wide and rapid scale are hotly debated. Global History and Migrations, the second volume of the Global History series, explores the historical background of this issue by focusing on recent history, a time when human movements have been at their most dynamic. This book provides a rich, cross-cultural foundation for a more enlightened understanding of migration and its role in the unfolding shape of global history.

Wang Gungwu is the vice chancellor of the University of Hong Kong.

Also in this series

Conceptualizing Global History

edited by Bruce Mazlish and Ralph Buultjens

Forthcoming

The Global Imperative An Interpretive History of the Spread of Mankind

edited by Robert P Clark

Global Civilization and Local Cultures

edited by Wolf Schäfer

New Global History Press
706 Beacon Street, Newton Center, Massachusetts 02459, USA